

Family Voices United to End Racism against CYSHCN and Their Families (FamU)

Black History 365

August: August features several awareness days that directly impact the lives of Black people.

August 28, also known as Black August, is a commemoration that began in 1979 to honor Black political prisoners and the resistance against racial oppression. Read more about Black August.

August is Black Business Month, first introduced in 2004 by Fredrick E Jordan and John William Templeton to honor Black-Owned Businesses. Read more.

The National Organ, Eye, and Tissue Donation Multicultural Action Group (NMG) established August as National Minority Donor Awareness Month to raise awareness about donation and transplantation within multicultural communities. Learn more.

August is National Breastfeeding Month. Black Breastfeeding Week is August, 25-31.

Diversity Resources recognizes August as Intersectionality Awareness Month. Coined in 1989 by professor Kimberle Crenshaw, intersectionality is a term used to describe how race, class, gender, and other individual characteristics (including disabilities) intersect and overlap with each other. Read about Intersectionality.

Did you know about the Blended History of Africans and Native Americans in Oklahoma?

Watch a video and read a blog to learn more.

Multimedia

- Dreams of Black Wall Street is a podcast that explores this period of great promise and disappointment for Black Americans.

Movies / Streaming

- Rebuilding Black Wall Street is a TV show that tells the story of Greenwood, also known as Black Wall Street—a thriving Black neighborhood in early 20th-century Tulsa, Oklahoma, that was destroyed during the Tulsa Race Massacre.

Readings

- Built from the Fire: The Epic Story of Tulsa's Greenwood District, America's Black Wall Street | Victor Luckerson
- Black Wall Street: From Riot to Renaissance in Tulsa's Historic Greenwood District | Hannibal B Johnson
- Let's Build A New Black Wall Street | Kyle Davis

